

Red Push at Standstill

Washington — (NEA) — "Five Percenters" and "Influence Peddlers" are still doing business in Washington at the same old stand. Prospects of flat national defense orders growing out of the Korean War have, in fact, increased the prospects for a killing by commission men, free lance manufacturer's agents, contact men who claim to be political fixers and new deal lawyers claiming to have an "in" with the administration.

In spite of the big expose of the Five Percenters racket and the strange doings of Maj-Gen. Harry Vaughan and pal John Maragon, by Sen. Clyde H. Hoey's Expenditures Subcommittee a year ago, the fraternity of alleged influence peddlers never left town.

Senators Karl E. Mundt, of South Dakota and Homer Ferguson of Michigan introduced bills requiring Five Percenters to register, and to make contractors report on all commissions paid. These bills were never passed.

Contractors must Fill Out Safe-Guard Forms

Defense Secretary Louis Johnson has declared that "the sellers of influence will be driven from the market place." "But, he apparently did not reckon with the smartness of the fixers and their lawyers.

General Services Administrator Jess Larson has set up other safeguards for government procurement contracts. These safeguards also apply to contracts for military supplies.

Since July 1, every bidder on a government supply contract has been required to sign a statement (Form 30) checking these points:

"That he is a () regular dealer in () manufacturer of the supplies bid upon.

"That he () has, () has not employed or retained a company or person (other than a full-time employee) to solicit or secure this contract, and agrees to furnish information relating thereto as requested by the contracting officer."

Then when the bid is made, the bidders must fill out another statement on contingent fees (form 119). This requires other information in companies or persons other than full time employees employed or retained to solicit or secure this contract."

Contractors must furnish names of these agents, their relationship to the contractor, a copy of the agreement with the agent, his duties, amounts paid or to be paid for securing contract, and statements of whether agents are bona fide employees.

How Contractor Can Work The Angles

Form 119 will not come into general use until October 1. And there has been so little experience with Form 30 that the Federal Supply Service has had no occasion to check returns.

But already there is evidence that the Five Percenters and Influence Peddlers are trying to find ways to beat this disclosure.

One reported dodge is to make the Washington agent or lawyer a vice president of the firm, or a special assistant to the president. The purpose is to make it appear that he is a "full-time employee."

As such, his identity would not have to be disclosed.

Still another dodge is to make the agent the legitimate Five Percenter — the cover-up man for the influence peddler, the fixer or the lawyer with the political pull in administration circles.

This is done by empowering the Five Percenters to hire legal counsel, paying him fees as part of his office expenses. The opportunities for political graft in such a racket are obvious.

Tus far, there have been no test cases on these attempted evasions. But government counsel for the procurement agencies are re-examining their regulations to see if they need tightening.

Federal Supply Service has already given an opinion that an agent — a Five Percenter — working for two or more companies cannot be regarded as "a full-time employee" of either or all of them.

Stock Show Talked Over in Meet Here

At 4:30 yesterday afternoon the officials of the Livestock Association played host to the county agents, vocational agricultural teachers and home demonstration agents from throughout 17 counties comprising the third district.

This meeting was for the purpose of reviewing plans for the fair and the group was divided into various committees for the purpose of making inspections of the various facilities and recommending improvements to increase the effectiveness for an exhibitors standpoint, as well as making the displays more attractive to the visitors.

Following the meeting the group was served a barbeque supper. Also invited to the meeting were members of the Arkansas legislature from the third district.

From all indications there will be more exhibitors this year than ever before and the interest displayed by those attending indicates that attendance this year will break all records. With many fine exhibits to be seen, plus a world championship rodeo and the largest motorized carnival in the world, coupled with the fact that this year's fair will have a free gate, the officials are optimistic about the success of this year's show.

Says Hydrogen Plant Work to Start Soon

Little Rock, Sept. 8 (AP) — Rep. James W. Trimble thinks construction on the proposed $200,000,000 hydrogen bomb plant may get underway within eight weeks.

He said in an interview here yesterday that he understood selection of a site was to be completed within the next three or four weeks and that construction would follow immediately.

He said members of the Arkansas congressional delegation were working for location of the plant in their state, probably in Newton and Searcy counties.

There have been reports in recent weeks that Arkansas had been selected for at least part of the plant, but there has been no official confirmation.

Trimble was here to address a rural electric co-operative meeting.

Many Attend Farm Bureau Picnic

All townships were represented at the Hempstead County Farm Bureau annual meeting and picnic at the Experiment Station near Hope yesterday. All in attendance took part in the building of the continuous program for Farm Bureau.

Gilbert Measles of the Arkansas Farmers Association and Farmers Plant Food Company of Little Rock discussed farmers' working together through their tire farming business. He compared farming to other industries having the relation of all costs and final marketing. Mr. Measles gave the development and scope of the farmers organization with which he is affiliated.

The Blue Cross Blue Shield Health Plan was discussed and endorsed by Dr. Jim McKenney of Hope. Through Farm Bureau in Hempstead County Blue Cross Blue Shield now covers 108 applicants and will be available to other families in early November. The other features of the group health plan were given.

H. T. Baber, District Organization Director of the Arkansas Farm Bureau, briefed the Arkansas Farm Bureau program. Ralph Barnes, Farm Bureau service director of Nevada County, explained service offered through Farm Bureau to its membership. The discussions were followed by division into groups for discussion of the different parts of the program and final recommendation for the program of the future.

The constitution and laws were amended to permit the Board of Directors to be elected by township membership numbers rather than a board with no specific distribution.

Through township caucus presided over by township Farm Bureau workers the following were nominated and elected to the 1951 Board of Directors: Ozan,

Charge Against Chapman Folds, GOP Is Gloomy

Washington, Sept. 8 — (AP) — Republicans accepted glumly today the virtual collapse of Senator Schoepfel's charges that Secretary of the Interior Chapman had Communist ties, and one of them conceded the GOP had taken a political shellacking.

Chapman vigorously denied the charges before the senate interior committee yesterday. He dared Schoepfel, a Kansas Republican, to repeated them where his congressional immunity would not hold and where the senator could be sued.

The cabinet member labelled as untrue and as "scandal mongering, insinuation and slander" Schoepfel's assertions that he had not signed required loyalty oaths and that he was linked to subversive organizations. Chapman produced loyalty affidavits he signed in 1941, 1946, 1947 and 1949.

Chapman denied that he had anything to do with the retention of Randolph Peetus, a publicity man, to lobby for statehood for Alaska. "Feltus denied the senator's charge that he had been 'an agent of the Kremlin.'" The committee called him back for further questioning today.

Schoepfel, a freshman senator who was making his first venture into a field where Senator McCarthy (R-Wis.) preceded him with Communist-in-government charges against state department officials, puffed vigorously on his pipe while Chapman was testifying.

Later Schoepfel told reporters that he had changed his original opinion of Chapman "in some respects" because the cabinet member had "cleared up certain angles which I have been uncertain about."

Schoepfel said he had depended on assistants — principally Frank Bow, now a Republican candidate for congress in Ohio — to gather the information and prepare the senate speech in which he made the charges against Chapman.

Bow is expected to be called for testimony next week. Democrats hope then to extract some more publicity from the affair.

Rulee Keel, 12-year-old negro boy, was seriously injured about 7:30 a. m. today when the bicycle he was riding collided with a gravel truck driven by Ed Cook of Lewisville, in the 900 block on West Third Street.

The youth, riding on the left side of the street, suddenly darted behind another vehicle and was struck down by the oncoming gravel truck.

He suffered compound fractures below and above the right knee. He was taken to the University Hospital, Little Rock, for treatment. Investigating officers Dunn and Johnson said the accident was unavoidable.

Malik Wins a Round in UN After a Beating

By STANLEY JOHNSON

Lake Success, Sept. 8 — (AP) — The United Nations Security Council will discuss Monday Russia's demand that a Communist Chinese representative be invited to sit in during debate on Red Chinese accusations against the United States. The charges are that the U.S. is guilty of aggression against Formosa, and that U.S. planes bombed Manchuria.

Russian Delegate Jacob A. Malik won the council's consent yesterday to consider such an invitation. That was just after he took a beating on his effort to get the council to condemn "barbaric" U.S. air force bombing in Korea.

The council voted yesterday, 7-3, to take up the question of Red Chinese participation in that debate at its next session. The United States abstained in line with its policy of letting other U. N. members decide the question of Red China's representation at Lake Success.

The vote in favor of the Russian proposal followed a 9-1 defeat of a Soviet resolution denouncing United States air action in Korea as a violation of the rules of warfare. Yugoslavia abstained.

The vote to invite Red China for Council consideration of Malik's proposal to invite Red China for the Manchuria-Formosa debate does not directly affect the Peiping government's chances of supplanting the Chinese Nationalist representatives in the U. N., but it creates a situation filled with international and domestic political dynamite for the American administration.

A U. S. vote against the proposal might be interpreted as an attempt to muzzle the Peiping accusers; a U. S. vote for it might be viewed as softening in America's opposition to the Chinese Communists.

Even if Malik's motion does not pass — and informed opinion here is almost equally divided as to whether or not it will — consideration of it will have delayed an

75 Days After Fighting in Korea Starts UN Forces Can Still Play Only Firemen Role

By HAL BOYLE

Tokyo, Sept. 8 — (AP) — Seventy-five days after fighting broke out in Korea, the United Nations forces still can play only the role of firemen.

It hasn't as yet been able to take the first real forward step toward carrying out its announced intention of acting as policemen to enforce peace in "the land of morning calm."

That is the blunt truth today, nearly eleven weeks after the battle for Korea began. And it must be faced bluntly by those groups of easy optimists both here and at home who blithely talk of having the war over "by Thanksgiving."

This blunt confidence can be based only on two things: 1. A blind hope that the North Koreans have been worn down by battle attrition and air and naval bombardment that their front will collapse.

2. A belief that the United Nations soon will throw into action a tremendous ground force "able by sheer weight of men and metal to overwhelm the enemy quickly."

Unfortunately, there is no trustworthy evidence along the battle front that the enemy is weakening. He appears, if anything, to be getting stronger. And there is as yet no sign here that the United Nations has massed a ready — enough muscle to end the war in a single mighty knockout blow.

The sad truth is that the Reds still are conducting a siege perilous. Since the allies withdrew to the Nakdong river line on Aug. 1, the communists have been able almost at will to start a major fire anywhere they chose along that 120-mile defensive perimeter. And they have done so.

Time after time it has taken the utter strength of the United Nations fire department to clamp up and stamp out or try to contain these blazes.

The last big bonfire ranged from the southern sector by the Korean straits clear around the battlefield to Pohang in the Japan sea. That fire is still burning dangerously.

In some cases the UN fire department itself has been all but

Temperatures Level Off to Near Normal

Chicago, Sept. 8 — (AP) — Temperatures leveled off to near seasonal temperatures over most of the nation today. They were slightly below normal in parts of the south and east central states, where rain fell, and in the Northern Plains states where a cool Canadian air mass was flowing southward.

The rain belt covered parts of Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, Tennessee, Georgia and the northern sections of Alabama and Mississippi. The rains were off-shoots from the remnants of the Florida hurricane. Heavy falls were reported in many of the southern states.

New Hurricane Threatening Bermuda

Miami, Fla., Sept. 8 — (AP) — A hurricane with winds up to 140 miles an hour was stalled 200 miles southwest of Bermuda today, threatening the tiny British island resort.

Winds of hurricane force (75 miles per hour or more) extend outward 80 to 100 miles from the center and the weather bureau warned that Bermuda may get "dangerous winds."

All planes were evacuated from the U. S. air force base at Kindley field there. They flew to Westover air force base in Massachusetts.

Future movement of the storm is uncertain, the weather bureau said, but added it is not expected to be more than five miles an hour for the next few hours.

The hurricane raked Antigua island, 250 miles southeast of Puerto Rico, a week ago with damage estimated at $1,000,000 before moving up the Atlantic toward Bermuda.

Florida was still counting damage from an erratic gulf hurricane than 400 homeless and damage of $3,000,000.

Americans Gain at Both Ends; Reds Regroup

Tokyo, Saturday, Sept. 8 — Allied troops hacked out gains at opposite ends of the lashed Korean warfront against dangerously Red forces.

Little fighting took place on whole 120-mile battlefield. The Koreans surprised this meant a new offensive assault.

A U. S. 8th army spokesman said the Red drive by 50,000 on Taegu, main Allied base on central front, had "probably" been probably from lack of "air and sufficient manpower to present."

The Reds had pushed to seven miles of Taegu, but U. S. S. First Cavalry and South Koreans broke back of their drive.

General MacArthur's headquarters warned of a possible offensive either in the southern north or east.

The buildup seemed greatest in the southern coastal approach to Pusan port, chief Allied base in Korea.

In Masan port, 27 airline miles west of Pusan, Allied authorities ordered to stir up trouble among the 75,000 population.

Five thousand were evacuated from Masan in the first 24 hours.

Battle mountain, a rugged about 12 miles northwest of Masan on the southwestern front was retaken Friday by the 25th infantry division. It was ninth time the peak changed hands.

Friday night the Reds entered the mountain with a heavy barrage. Communist troops struck immediately after dark.

American troops and troops gained a few yards the east coast in their advance. A five-mile gap in the lines. AP Correspondent said at the front reported the U. S. and South Korean troops were separate attack, but a murky weather to try to close gap.

The hole remained after a battlefront patching had gathered a bigger hole punched by a Red breakthrough early in the week.

At dusk the doughboys made little progress. They halted by rugged terrain plus drenching rain which reduced support to six sorties Friday.

Taegu, threatened by 50,000 the 130,000 Reds on the battlefront appeared safe for now. The Reds were stopped north of it by U. S. cavalrymen and South Koreans.

The Americans counterattacked but had to withdraw from a narrow band on a hill north of Taegu. They expected air support to arrive because of the Red resistance on the hill was sharp.

The Red radio in Pusan North Korean capital claimed for two days that Communists held Taegu.

The town of Yonchong, east of Taegu, changed hands twice Friday in bitter fighting between North and South.

Two Red tanks roared into Yonchong, important highway junction, Thursday night but were shot out Friday.

An American field officer Friday night said the Reds were not actually in Yonchong. "It is under Red control," he said. "The Reds are in the lines in between Yonchong and Angang, eight miles west of the Pusan of the sea coast. The Allies own the six miles away."

A spokesman at General Arthur's headquarters said the Reds were building strength rapidly in the area where they have been harassed so it was a "big" where they have been harassed back in two major attacks reach Pusan.

Tokyo, Sept. 8 — (AP) — U. S. troops stalled on the Korean battlefield today, said General MacArthur's headquarters, warned a new offensive was near.

There were North Korean ups in the southwest, and to the east of the central front base. Communist troops bogged down near Taegu.

Masan, south coast 100 miles west of Pusan, was one of the most important. The order was given to Communist troops to be withdrawn from the city was not obeyed. They were warned that they would be treated as the enemy.

About 5,000 U. S. troops were in the area.

It could go on for another six months.

THE FORMER MISS FREY

By Edwin Ruff

Copyright 1950 Edwin Ruff, Inc.

THE STORY: Miss Frey, the former Miss Frey, was a beauty queen who won the title in 1948. She was a beauty queen who won the title in 1948. She was a beauty queen who won the title in 1948.

EDITH FLOOD set straight. A most talented, intelligent young woman, she was a beauty queen who won the title in 1948. She was a beauty queen who won the title in 1948.

Ede feared that things would be in a mess until she returned, and pointed this out to Peter. But Peter asserted, cheerfully enough, that he could manage. There was, naturally, no question of his accompanying her. Aside from the fact that he could be of no help, he occupied a prominent place in old Cornelius Frey's Black Book.

Ede's thoughts swung to the things that might lie ahead. Now that the first shock of the news had worn off, she found herself not inclined to worry too much. It was serious, of course, or even her brother Jeffrey, nervous and somewhat hysterical, wouldn't have wired. But there was a chance that it wasn't terribly serious. When anything went wrong, Jeff Frey was always quite likely to go off the deep end. It could be that he had sent the telegram without consulting anyone, fearing things that were never destined to happen.

For her mind rejected the possibility of Cornelius Frey's dying. Hard, wiry, implacable, he would fight death as he had fought life, with a kind of cold reasoned fury.

There was a powerhouse of strength, she knew, in his tough lean body. If any man could pull through an illness, even a grave one, it would be her father.

As for her younger brother and sister, Myron and Jennifer, Ede scarcely gave them a thought. Myron was the dreamy, impractical one, with vague blue eyes and a constant stream of daydreams. Jennifer, on the other hand, was a serious, practical girl, with a quick, keen look, then turned his eyes to the road again. "He asked me to send you that wire."

Well, there they were, thought Ede. And Jeffrey had considered it necessary to wire her, who was by way of being the black sheep. But there was no use worrying and planning until she got there and knew the worst, or the best. So she sat in her seat, wondering how her father would receive her. Ten to one Jeff had sent that telegram without the knowledge and approval of old Cornelius.

JEFFREY FREY met her at the airport. For all his broad shoulders, he looked thin and peaked. There was a harassed expression on his sallow face. Ede's first thought was that Jeff had grown older, much older than the three years since she had seen him seemed to warrant. "Well, Ede," he said, kissing her, "this is a rotten homecoming for you."

"It's serious, then?" Ede said quickly. "Just about as bad as it could be," said Jeff. "Come on. The car's this way."

He hurried her into it and they started for the city. "Now then, Jeff," Ede said, "let's have it."

Jeffrey's tired face tightened. "He simply cracked up, Ede. It seemed to happen all at once. The doctors say complications. But his heart's the worst. He—Jeff shook his head—"he can't possibly pull through."

"Does he," she asked hesitantly, "know that I'm coming?" "Jeff flashed her a quick look, then turned his eyes to the road again. "He asked me to send you that wire."

"Oh," said Ede, a little weakly. Even in the shadow of the grave, it would not be in Cornelius Frey's nature to forgive.

The Frey house on upper Fifth Avenue was just as Ede remembered it. Gray and forbidding from without; high-ceilinged, cool and dark within.

MYRON had not changed. He was as vague and offhand as ever. He greeted Ede casually, almost as if she had never been away. But Jennifer came forward quickly, threw strong sun-browned arms around her sister.

"Oh, darling," she said, "I'm so glad you've come."

My little sister, Ede thought, seems to have the makings of a nice kid. She held Jennifer off and looked at her. The angular figure she remembered had resolved itself into slim willowy lines. Jenn was tall and straight, copper-haired, and with vivid blue eyes. But the eager look was still there though, obviously, Jenn tried to conceal it beneath a thin veil of sophistication. And Jenn's mouth was still small and determined.

"You've grown up, baby," Ede said. "And you're very beautiful." And Jenn's smile was like a light, turned on suddenly.

"You'd better go right up, Ede," said Jeff. "We're asking for you constantly."

Ede went up the wide circular staircase slowly. A pleasant-faced nurse in a starched white uniform met her at the top.

population were moved out in the first batch.

Heaviest fighting of the 24-hour period up to Friday noon was in the southwest.

The Red attacks there, on the central front, and along the east coast were halted as rain drummed down on the battlefields.

A U. S. 8th army spokesman in Korea said the fourth Communist effort to drive American and South Korean troops into the sea had "petered out."

He also told AP Correspondent Jack MacBeth:

"We believe they are running out of ammunition supplies, men and other things necessary to press an attack."

The Communists kept the Allies guessing as to where their next dried would start. The whole front could flame into a roaring battle again shortly.

Fighting Friday cost the North Koreans 3,100 casualties. These were killed on the 20,000 they had lost in the southwest alone in a week of fighting. There has been no estimate of the losses from Taegu to the east coast, but casualties have been very heavy there.

The MacArthur spokesman said the Reds are building up again in the northeast, north and southwest. Bad weather Friday kept Allied planes from hitting the Communist concentrations of men and supplies.

Mediators Renew GE Talks

Washington, Sept. 8 — (AP) — Federal mediators today renewed efforts to settle the General Electric company's dispute with the CIO International Electrical Workers union (IUE) after reporting no progress at initial talks.

The prospect of prolonged negotiations, was raised by Lemuel Boulware, GE vice president and chief management negotiator. He said it might take 12 or 13 days more to tell the company's story, judging by the pace of yesterday's negotiations.

Shunted aside temporarily was a suggestion made by James B. Carey, the union's chairman, that President Truman name a fact-finding board to recommend settlement terms. He proposed that if the company agreed in advance to accept such a board's eventual recommendations, the present strike of IUE members would be called off. Carey has not yet carried this proposal formally to the White House, however.

Moreover, General Electric is opposed to the plan. Cyrus S. Ching, federal mediation service director, said he considered the fact-finding board idea premature.

About 32,000 IUE members are on strike, out of the union's claimed representation of 85,000 in GE plants, which employs 185,000 workers in all. The CIO union seeks a 15-cents wage-and-welfare settlement, as against a company offer estimated to equal 10 cents hourly.

Western Electric Cities Margin of Profit to USC

Little Rock, Sept. 8 — (AP) — Western Electric makes only a modest profit on equipment it sells to Southwestern Bell Telephone company and other phone companies of the Bell system, the Arkansas Public Service commission was told yesterday.

Alvin J. Clark, chief operating statistician in Western Electric's accounting division, testified that over a 34-year period Western's margin of profit had been only 4.3 per cent on its dollar sales volume.

He said that in comparison the profit of the nation's 50 largest manufacturing companies averaged 6.1 per cent and profit of General Electric and Westinghouse averaged 7.4 per cent on combined volume of the two electrical manufacturing companies.

Clark was one of several witnesses who testified about the regulation of American Telephone and Telegraph company and its subsidiaries, including Southwestern Bell and Western Electric, in the PSC hearing on Southwestern Bell's application for a $4,000,000 annual rate increase in Arkansas.

Western Electric is the equipment manufacturer and supplier for Bell companies.

Harry C. Gertz, New York assistant comptroller for A. T. & T., said Western Electric is able to handle manufacture and supply cheaper and more efficiently than if each company attempted to do the work itself or to buy its equipment on the open market.

Going to War for 3rd Time—as a Chaplain

Harrison, Sept. 8 (P)—The Rev.

Joe Lauro, who interrupted his studies for the priesthood to fly in combat for two allied nations in World War two, is going back to war — this time as a chaplain.

Father Lauro, a native of Chicago, was a student at St. John's seminary in Little Rock, when, early in 1941, he left and entered the Canadian Royal Air Force.

Commissioned a flight lieutenant, he went to Europe and flew 68 missions over Germany and Italy. After the United States entered the war, he resigned from the RAF and joined the U. S. Air Force. In command of a B-24 crew, he flew 34 missions over Germany.

154th Fighter Squadron Is Alerted for Duty

It was announced here yesterday.

Italy and France. From England he twice received the Distinguished Flying Cross, and from the United States the DEC and the Air Medal with five clusters.

After being mustered out of the U. S. Air Force with the rank of major, he returned to St. John's. He was ordained a priest last May, celebrated his first mass in St. Theodore's church at Chicago, and was assigned to Catholic churches here and at Eureka Springs.

Yesterday he announced he would rejoin the armed forces as a chaplain.

day that the Arkansas units will mobilize at Little Rock's Adams field, their home station, on Oct. 10 and would be at an undisclosed new station by Oct. 20.

At Washington the air force announced the four fighter bomber groups and one tactical reconnaissance group of the air national guard would be called to duty in the near future.

Identity of the units was not disclosed there, but apparently the 154th was one of them.

An air force spokesman said it was the first call-up of air guard units.

Most officers and men of the 154th and the attached units live in the greater Little Rock area.

Lt. Col. Timothy A. Shea is commanding officer of the 154th. The attached units are the 154th utility squadron, the 154th weather station and detachment B of the 237th air service group.

Says Several Schools Eligible for Federal Aid

Little Rock, Sept. 8 (AP)—Arkansas Education Commissioner A. B. Bonds believes approximately a dozen Arkansas school districts would be entitled to federal aid under terms of a bill which the senate passed yesterday.

The bill, which now goes to the house, would authorize a three-year school construction program at an estimated cost of $150,000, 000 or more in districts whose enrollment has increased because of large federal installations.

Bonds said he didn't know how much Arkansas' share would be if the bill becomes law.

Possible participating districts, the commissioner said, would include those near Bull Shoals dam in North Arkansas; Fayetteville, Little Rock and North Little Rock (Veterans Administration hospital); Pine Bluff (arsenal) and Texarkana (Red River Ordnance plant.)

and Miss Suzanne McNeill, and Mrs. Thompson Evans, Sr.

Says Red Bill Might Lead to GOP Victory

Washington, Sept. 8 (AP)—Senator McCarran (D-Nev) said today President Truman's avowed refusal to sign his stringent anti-communist bill, if congress passes it, might lead to a Republican victory next November.

The Nevada Democrat said Mr. Truman would not sign the McCarran bill if it was sent to the White House was "the most colossal mistake I have ever heard of being made by the President."

"I should be very unhappy to know that the President would veto this bill, and not the least of my unhappiness would be the fact that the people of the country would let the bill enacted into law," McCarran told newsmen.

"This desire of the people in that respect might be very emphatical-

STYLE LEADER OF 1951 PACKARD LINE

Style leader of the new 1951 Packard line is the Patrician "400"—a car to pioneer a whole new era of fine car development. Sleek lines of the daring new functional body design combine with smartly-tailored "Fashion Forum" interiors to highlight this model, which is powered by a new Packard Thunderbolt engine. Ultramatic Drive is standard equipment. The new engine has a 7.8-to-1 compression ratio—the highest in the industry for full-size passenger car engines—and rates 155 h.p. Other models in the 1951 Packard line are the "300," termed the new "Boss of the Road" and the "200," in seven body styles, including both soft-top and hard-top convertibles. Improved Ultramatic Drive, Packard's famed automatic transmission, is optional on these models at slight extra cost.

In the new line, rear seat passengers sit even further ahead of the rear axle to give an improved "Limousine Ride." Lowered hood line enhances the "Guide-Line" fenders. Wrap-around, three-piece rear windows, together with a new curved one-piece windshield, afford "Horizon View" visibility. The Patrician "400" and "300" are on a 127-inch wheelbase while the "200" models have a longer 122-inch wheelbase.

DOROTHY DIX Deluded Woman

Dear Miss Dix: My marriage of twenty-five years has come to an end. My wife and I are close to the 45-year mark, but she says that she is a young woman and that there are plenty of thrills in life left for her. She says that she never got to go with anybody else but me as a girl and couldn't do the things she wanted to do, so now she is tired of marriage, our home must be broken up, and she has sued for divorce. And when I try to talk and reason with her she goes into tears and threatens suicide. She says that there is no other man and that she does not want to marry again. I am all broken up over the affair and sick from worry. How can I make her see that I am the best friend she will ever have? Will she be happy in the course she is pursuing?

AN UNHAPPY HUSBAND
Answer: Your wife is a pathological case and should be under the care of some good doctor. She needs to be saved from herself and prevented from committing a criminal folly of breaking up her home and divorcing a good husband.

band. It is bad enough for the man who thinks that he can regain his lost youth by divorcing his old wife and marrying some girl young enough to be his daughter, but it is far worse for the middle-aged woman who deludes herself into believing that she can go back and gather up all her girlish dreams again and have the romantic experiences of 18 at 46.

Past is Over
It cannot be done. What is past, is past. No miracle is going to happen that will give her back a girl's heart anymore than it will give her back her girlish figure, or her childish face, or the innocent child's eyes that looked on life with awe and wonder. She has seen too much, known too much, experienced too much ever to palpitate again over the things that thrilled her in her early youth. So the woman's dream—that she can go back and have all the experiences that she missed in her girlhood can never be realized. She who has known marriage and child-bearing and work and worry, and

Way to Hobble Communism Is Argument

JAMES M. WATSON

Washington, Sept. 7 (AP)—President Truman and congress are in a race to pass the bills to hobble Communism. He is hobbled, too, but not by Congress. He has in mind, however, a bill already passed by the house, introduced by Rep. George W. Brown, who is chairman of the house un-American activities committee. The senate is debating a similar bill, introduced by Sen. McCarran, Nevada Democrat. It is a kind of bundle of bills, wrapped up in one package. It contains almost everything that is in the house bill, and then some. Because he thinks it goes too far, he said yesterday that he would not sign it if congress passed it. One can predict at this moment that congress finally will pass it. That is because the house and senate bills are not identical. Both houses will have to compromise on one bill, probably a mixture of both — before sending it to the president.

Moscow Says People Resent Americans

Moscow, Sept. 7 (AP)—Publication of Moscow's press of the Soviet protest to the United States on the downing of a Soviet plane in far East waters appeared today to have increased the rising resentment in this capital against the Americans.

This anti-American feeling has been growing with each publication of details by the press on the bombings of North Korean objectives by United States planes. The public here reads that civilians are being shot down by the fliers and that people's homes are being wrecked. Coming on top of a mass of such reports, the new plane incident is causing much talk among Moscow's public, and it centers about condemnation of the Americans. The people here do not believe that the action in Korea is a United Nations campaign. They see it as action by the United States along with any others it can get to participate. The press published the Soviet protest note on their second pages under black headlines reading: "Protest of Soviet government to United States government." There were no front page editorials on the issue. (All Moscow dispatches are subject to rigid censorship. The part of this dispatch received in New York did not elaborate on the lack of editorial comment, but the usual procedure for the Soviet press is to digest major new events for several days before the Communist party lays down the tenor of editorial comment.)

On the following points the two bills are almost identical: 1. All Communists would have to be registered with the government. So would all Communist front outfits. And the Communist organizations would have to keep a record of where they spend their money and how they spend it. (This is the part of both bills to which Mr. Truman and his advisers object most strenuously.) 2. Communists couldn't hold government jobs — unless elected, for example: To congress. It would even be a crime for them to look for a government job without first disclosing they were Communists. 3. It would be a crime for anyone working for the government to contribute to a Communist outfit. 5. It would be unlawful for a Communist here to try to get a passport to get out of the country, for anyone to give him a passport. 6. It would be unlawful for Communists to send any propaganda through the mails — to dish it out over the radio or TV — without plainly labeling the material as coming from a Communist. 7. And a special board — called the subversive activities control board — would be created to supervise the enforcement of all these things if they became law. (The house bill, but not the senate bill, would even forbid a Communist to hold a job in a defense plant.) Up to this point the house and senate bills are almost the same. But that's as far as the house bill goes. The senate bill picks up from there, includes the President's requests, and adds these things: It would make it unlawful for anyone to conspire to set up a dictatorship here; it would make spying or helping spies unlawful, but this is only tightening up present anti-spying laws; it wouldn't let alien Communists or Communist-sympathizers come into this country, and members of a diplomatic group, like the Russians, could be kicked out if they tried any monkeyshines (although this latter can be done now pretty well); all aliens living here would have to report and register once a year, giving their address (they're supposed to report changes of address now but apparently don't always do it) and it would tighten up the laws on who could become a citizen by denying citizenship to Communists or ex-Communists; and — it would make it easier to throw out aliens who are Communists.

FBI Prepared to Arrest 12,000 Red Suspects

Washington, Sept. 7 (AP)—FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover was reported to have told senators today his agents are ready to arrest 12,000 dangerous Communists if war should break out with Russia. A member of the senate appropriations committee, asking not to be named, quoted Hoover as telling the group in a closed session that he needs more funds for additional agents to keep a close check on these persons. He said Hoover wants his agents to be able "to put these people to bed at night and get them up in the morning" in watching their activities.

Polio May Be Spread by Contact

Little Rock, Sept. 7 (AP)—The Arkansas state health department reported today that "a great deal of evidence is accumulating this year," indicates polio is spread by direct personal contact with persons harboring the disease. The information was contained in the department's weekly report, issued by Dr. A. M. Washburn, director of communicable disease control.

The report said investigations made in one county at least, show two, three or more cases arising after exposure to a sick child, who at the time of exposure was not known to have polio.

In several instances, the source case never developed paralytic polio, only a sore throat and fever.

The report said such mild or missed cases make control of many infectious diseases, including polio, difficult. It added that public health authorities stress the need to keep well children away from sick ones to avoid unnecessary exposure.

The report also said that while polio has not existed in epidemic form in Arkansas this year, except in possibly one or two counties, the number of cases reported each week has been consistently slightly above the expectancy rate.

There were 15 cases reported in the week ending Sept. 2. The total for the year is 186 while for the corresponding period during the 1949 epidemic, the total was 757.
